

Terms & Conditions

Copyright

The copyright for How2tell and all the content, logo, video and images contained is the property of Trinity College Dublin, and is protected by copyright law. In accessing the website, downloading the booklet and app, you agree to do so only for your own personal, non-commercial use. You may not agree to, permit or assist any third party to copy, reproduce, modify or commercially exploit in any way the content, logo, video and images without prior written consent of Trinity College Dublin.

Disclaimer

The information contained in the How2tell website, booklet and app is for educational and informational purposes only. It aims to assist people with epilepsy who want to learn HOW to tell others about their epilepsy. While the information is based on a research study of the experiences of adults (aged 18+) with a range of forms of epilepsy, it is provided without knowledge of the reader's medical condition or specific circumstances. The application and impact of the information may vary from person to person and therefore, it is intended as a guide only. This is not a substitute for medical advice. Neither Trinity College Dublin nor Epilepsy Ireland shall bear responsibility for any direct or indirect loss or damage resulting from the use of the information.

Terms & Conditions for How2tell App

End User License Agreement

This End-User License Agreement (EULA) is a legal agreement between you (either an individual or a single entity) and the Provider (Epilepsy Ireland) of this Software for the software product [How2tell App], which includes computer software and may include associated media, printed materials, and "online" or electronic documentation ("software product").

By installing the software product, you agree to be bounded by the terms of this EULA.

If you do not agree to the terms of this EULA, do not install or use the software product.

Copyright

The copyright for the software product and all the content, logo, video and images contained belongs to Trinity College Dublin [the Developer], and is protected by copyright law. In downloading the App, you agree to do so only for your own personal, non-commercial use. The content, logo, video and images contained in this App cannot be copied, reproduced, modified or sold by any other person or organisation without prior written consent of Trinity College Dublin.

Purpose of the software product

The purpose of the software product is for educational and informational purposes only. It aims to assist people with epilepsy who want to learn HOW to tell others about their epilepsy. The information contained in this App is based on a research study of the experiences of adults (aged 18+) with a range of forms of epilepsy. It gives practical information about how to: become comfortable with your epilepsy, understand the value in telling people, decide on who you should tell about your epilepsy and when is the best time and place to bring up the subject, use different opportunities to tell, how to tell people depending on who they are, make the message ordinary, and deal with reactions from who you tell.

Disclaimer

The information contained in this App is provided without knowledge of the reader's medical condition or specific circumstances. The application and impact of the information may vary from person to person and therefore, it is intended as a guide only. This is not a substitute for medical advice. Neither Trinity College Dublin nor Epilepsy Ireland shall bear responsibility for any direct or indirect loss or damage resulting from the use of the information.

Functionality

While every effort is made in ensuring that the software product fulfils its purpose in assisting you to learn about telling people about your epilepsy, Epilepsy Ireland does not warrant that: (i) the service will meet your own personal requirements, (ii) the service will be uninterrupted or error-free, (iii) any errors in the software product will be corrected.

To the extent permitted by law, in no event shall Epilepsy Ireland be liable for any direct or indirect or consequential/special loss or damage resulting from the use or the inability to use or any other matter relating to the functionality of the software product. Your use of the software product is at your own risk.

Changes to the software product

Epilepsy Ireland reserves the right at any time, with or without notice, to update, modify or discontinue, temporarily or permanently, the software product or any part thereof. Epilepsy Ireland shall not be liable for any loss or damage arising from modifications, suspensions or discontinuance. While we will attempt to notify users of upcoming updates and modifications via our website www.epilepsy.ie, such updates or modifications may at our discretion, be pushed out to App users automatically with little or no notice.

Should it be discontinued, it will continue to work on your device until software updates render it obsolete. The App may cease to function for a variety of other reasons, including, but not limited to damage to your phone.

Changes to Terms and Conditions

Epilepsy Ireland may update these Terms and Conditions in conjunction with the release of new versions of the software product or at any time at our discretion and without notice. Revisions to these Terms and Conditions will be posted on our website www.epilepsy.ie. Any new features added from time to time, including the release of new tools and resources, are subject to these Terms and Condition. Continued use of the software product after any such changes shall constitute your consent to such changes.

Acceptance of Terms and Conditions

By activating the software product, you agree to the Terms & Conditions stated herein. The software product is intended for use by adults over the age of 18 years.

Governing law

This agreement will be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of Ireland and any dispute between us will be resolved exclusively in the courts of Ireland.

If you have any questions about these Terms & Conditions please call Epilepsy Ireland at 01 4557500 or send us a mail to info@epilepsy.ie .